

NASTE Season 2015 – Race #12

April 12, 2015

Too Bad Motorplex, Portland, Oregon

A great group of twenty-seven racers attended the 12th NASTE race at Bill Bostic's Too Bad Motorplex in Fairview this past Sunday. The car of the afternoon – Parma Womps – 1:24 scale. VW Bugs to be specific. Harkening all the way back to the early days of NASTE – a Dave Smith design.

Now you'd think with all those bugs loose that someone was going to get slugged but the only violence in attendance was occurring on the track. The little slug-a-bugs buzzed around the circuit like a hoard of angry bees with each driver pushing to the limit.

Occasionally one of the bees would get sent off with a little slap. That only seemed to make them angrier.

Despite such raucous behavior no bees were damaged - and no drivers were slugged.

When two sets of heats finally concluded Goose Gossett slipped by Flyin' Bryan Trachsel for the win in the Expert division with Rico Locati and Terry Abbot finishing tied for third.

Jeff Fields took the top spot in the NASTE Challenge division with Thomas 'the Chizzle' Flood second and Tyler Petrequin in third.

Thanks to Bill for hosting and all the others that contributed to a splendid afternoon.
