

NASTE Season 2010 – Race #1

October 16, 2010

Hemi Heights Raceway Park, Portland, Oregon

The first NASTE race of the 2011 season was held Saturday at the Jeff Courtney's Hemi Heights Raceway Park in northeast Portland. Hemi Heights is a 4-lane wood-routed track offering great racing for 1/24 scale cars.

A great group of sixteen racers showed up to put Jeff's set of IROC racers through their paces. The NASTE cars are not extremely fast (being powered by RadioShack motors), but they are challenging and fun to drive! The cars slip and slide around and it's a challenge to take a corner at a high rate of speed. Crashes were rampant as drivers laughed their way through two sets of heats. Its fender slapping at it's very best in the true NASTE tradition.

The racing proved to be very close and as the evening progressed, Jeff Courtney came out on top to claim the win just squeaking by Flyin' Bryam in second and Dave Smith in third. In fact the top four racers were separated by slightly more than one lap. Thanks to the Courtney's for a great night of racing!
